Editor. HKEY_LOCAL_MACHINE\SOFTWARE\Microsoft\Office is what we need to look at in order to get rid of any unwanted updates for Office. Today I found myself trying to install MS Office 2007 on two different computers, both of them running Windows 7 64-bit. On the first computer, the Office installation failed, and on the second, the installation went through fine. I was surprised that it went through the installation process fine. Both computers have the latest updates for Microsoft Windows, updates for Office, and updates for .NET framework. I have installed the 32-bit version of Office, not the 64-bit version, because I am on a 64-bit computer and do not have a license to the 64-bit version of Office. The registry entry in HKEY_LOCAL_MACHINE\SOFTWARE\Microsoft\Office\Office14\InstallHistory shows up as 261137288, which is apparently the installation number of Office 2010. What is the most likely scenario that could have triggered the successful Office installation? "I'm sure you are not running this version of Microsoft Office.
