If a serial number has not been entered for an iTunes install, the software then displays a small serial number for the device. For example, if you try to install a serial number for a new iPod Touch, the software will automatically display the current serial number for that device.

When you enter the serial number, the installation is processed as though the serial number has been manually entered. For example, if you try to install a serial number for an iPhone, the software automatically displays a small serial number for that device. When you enter the serial number, the installation is processed as though the serial number has been manually entered. Click Add in the Serial Number column. In the Serial Number field, type the 15-character serial number. If you haven't previously registered any serial numbers, the software will automatically add the serial number for the current device. Click OK in the iTunes dialog box. Select Install. Follow the on-screen instructions. iTunes will now install the software. The installation is initiated automatically when the iPod is connected to the computer. Click Add in the Serial Number column. In the Serial Number field, type the 15-character serial number.
